Fear and crime

Editori Franco Angeli, Milano, 2002, 130 p.

The fear of crime is a very interesting topic which involves the attention of experts, policy makers, media and common people.

The relationship between fear and criminality is very peculiar and difficult to define because of its complexity.

In this volume the author tries to deepen the subject through researches conducted in Italy in the last years and through a wide literature.

Fear increases while criminality doesn't change. This is the reason why what is necessary is a coordinate approach which analyzes crime and fear in an integrated way.
